

SUCCESSFUL LIVING

TK Berntsen

It is my belief that we all have something very important to contribute to our World, each and every single day of our lives. God created us with a specific purpose in mind, both a purpose for each day of our lives and a grand purpose for our entire life. Thus, as a consequence, not only will your life and presence have a contribution to the greater Creation of God, you will also have something important to contribute to the World on this very day we call 'today'.

It is important to remember that God has given you a purpose for every single day you are alive. Every day, God sends you at least one person for whom you hold a gift in your hand. You may not know what this gift is, or who this person will be, until the very moment when this person enters your day, but you will then know it immediately and you will know what your contribution will be. So, remember that today God will put a person in front of you, whom will benefit from your presence.

The only questions left to ask you will be: Will you give your gift to that person today? Right then and there? Fully and completely? Will you contribute to the World? These can be confronting questions for some of us to address, but if we can honestly and truthfully answer yes to these questions, we will find ourselves becoming God's chosen ones with the power to positively influence the World for the better.
